Net Neutrality

Recently TRAI has issued a consultation paper on 'Regulatory Mechanism for Over-the-Top (OTT) Communication Services and Regarding Selective Ban on OTT Services.

Due to this, the debate has again erupted regarding net neutrality.

Net neutrality is a principle advocating a free and level playing field for all online content and services.

This principle ensures that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat everyone equally without discriminating or charging differently based on the content, its source, or its destination.

The Department of Telecommunications (DoT) issued a regulatory framework on net neutrality in 2018.

It supports the principle of non-discrimination with some exceptions.
