3 A Buddhism religion is based upon the teaching life experiences of Siddharth Gautam. At the age of 29 he left home and adopted lifestyle of asceticism and discipline. Ashoka, great king of Mauryan dynasty of India. His vigorous patronage of Buddhism during his reign. He was a successful leader but bloody conquest of Kalinga on east coast, he renounced armed conquest and adopted a policy that is "Conquest by Dharma".

The basic tenets of Ashoka's Dhamma were based on Buddhist principle of non-violence. Edicts found in Afghanistan and Pakistan prove that 'Ashoka Dhamma' reached to this part of the world. They highlight Ashoka's activity as Buddhist disciple.

• His Dhamma helped in the development of local languages and scripts.

• He sent missionaries not only to South India but also to Ceylon, Burma, China and other countries. Ashoka's son Mahendra and daughter Sanghamitra, who was sent to Ceylon, planted there a branch of original Bochi tree.

• Ashoka convened the 3rd Buddhist Council at Patliputra to strengthen the Sangha, where philosophical interpretation of the Buddhist doctrine were collected into Abhidhamma Pitaka, and three pitakas came to be known as Tripitaka.

• A massive work on architecture started during Ashoka's reign. The rock-cut architecture was introduced. Stupas, viharas, pillars were built in large number not only in India but across the world.

Ashoka propagate the message of ahimsa, nirvana. Thus common man during that time was relieved from ritualistic cumbersome practices of then existing religions across the world.
